recasts the commonly dismissed colonial project pursued in hokkaido during the meiji era 1868 1912 as a major force in the production of modern japan s national identity imperial ideology and empire this thesis examines how historical social and political factors influence the creation of literary space focusing on representations of the northern japanese island of hokkaido in modern japanese literature the works examined below are set in hokkaido from the 1880s to the 1930s and they all exhibit a certain ambiguous duality this ambiguity derives from hokkaido s dual position as an internal colony simultaneously being both within sovereign borders and without as a colonial space given its status as an internal colony however the tension between naichi mainland japan and hokkaido gives rise to issues over national and ethnic authenticity these issues of authenticity and belonging are encoded spatially in the texts and in the dialectical relationship between naichi and hokkaido japanese authenticity itself is created questioned or reaffirmed because of its nature these works make up the first corpus of colonial literature of japan after the introduction the works of kunikida doppo 1871 1908 arishima takeo 1878 1923 kobayashi takiji 1903 1933 it sei 1905 1969 and honj mutsuo 1905 1939 will be examined this volume examines the meiji restoration through a global history lens to re interpret the formation of a globally cast japanese nation state japan s so called peace constitution renounces war as a sovereign right of the nation and bans the nation from possessing any war potential yet japan also maintains a large world class military organization namely the self defence forces sdf in this book tomoyuki sasaki explores how the sdf enlisted popular support from civil society and how civil society responded to the growth of the sdf japan s postwar military and civil society details the interactions between the sdf and civil society over four decades from the launch of rearmament in 1950 these interactions include recruitment civil engineering disaster relief anti sdf litigation state financial support for communities with bases and a fear mongering campaign against the soviet union by examining these wide range issues the book demonstrates how the militarization of society advanced as the sdf consolidated its ideological and socio economic ties with civil society and its role as a defender of popular welfare while postwar japan is often depicted as a peaceful society this book challenges such a view and illuminates the prominent presence of the military in people s everyday lives the former tokugawa bakufu exercised varying degrees of suzerainty over the indigenous ainu people of hokkaido for centuries however increasingly direct challenges to japanese territorial sovereignty by the rapidly expanding american british and russian colonial empires pushed the new meiji regime to formally annex ainu territories across the northern island in 1869 claiming them as terra nullius empty ownerless land thereafter with the support of a contingent of foreign advisors educators and diplomats the modernizing meiji state began to transform hokkaido into an export driven resource colony resembling not the japanese mainland but new england settlers many of them penniless former samurai took on the role of white american frontiersmen breaking a land re imagined as uninhabited primordial and virginal meanwhile colonialists began to re cast the ainu as akin to the indians of the american frontier these indian like ainu were subjected to a series of discourses and policies which aimed to de indigenize them conceptually rendering them non native in their own colonized homeland this facilitated the dispossession of their land their resources and ultimately of their own bodies a transnational settler colonial project hokkaido was not simply a westernized region internal to japan but an outer territory which became japanese precisely through its westernization and far from an obscure outer periphery settler colonial hokkaido was central to the development of the modern japanese nation state and its wider colonial empire accordingly the present study builds upon a growing wave of revisionist literature which challenges the conventional understanding that the japanese colonial period began with the acquisition of taiwan in 1895 and ended with japan s defeat in the asia pacific war in 1945 it instead understands hokkaido as an ongoing settler colonial project
