is confucianism a religion if so why do most chinese think it isn t from ancient confucian temples to nineteenth century archives to the testimony of people interviewed by the author throughout china over a period of more than a decade this book traces the birth and growth of the idea of confucianism as a world religion the book begins at oxford in the late nineteenth century when friedrich max müller and james legge classified confucianism as a world religion in the new discourse of world religions and the emerging discipline of comparative religion anna sun shows how that decisive moment continues to influence the understanding of confucianism in the contemporary world not only in the west but also in china where the politics of confucianism has become important to the present regime in a time of transition contested histories of confucianism are vital signs of social and political change sun also examines the revival of confucianism in contemporary china and the social significance of the ritual practice of confucian temples while the chinese government turns to confucianism to justify its political agenda confucian activists have started a movement to turn confucianism into a religion confucianism as a world religion might have begun as a scholarly construction but are we witnessing its transformation into a social and political reality with historical analysis extensive research and thoughtful reflection confucianism as a world religion will engage all those interested in religion and global politics at the beginning of the chinese century justice has been the dominant cultural framework of people in the west for two centuries ever since the rise of constitutional democracies consciously or not most people in the west have a strong awareness of right and wrong their sense of morality is generally rooted in an obligation to the rule of law in democratic societies the rule of law ultimately relies on constitutional documents ratified by a widely accepted process of development and implementation for millennia honor has been the dominant cultural framework of most people in the east and middle east here people know that speech and behavior display respect or disrespect while pervasive in all relationships honor and shame are most important in the family extended family and local community in the east honor is not necessarily an internal feeling as it is in a justice culture honor is more often an external attribution bestowed by others rather than claimed by oneself harmony is prevalent globally in indigenous cultures many indigenous peoples do not distinguish between the supernatural and natural worlds all aspects of life are connected interactions with spirit beings are the key to maintaining harmony in order to be secure reciprocity is a common cultural framework in the global south here one learns to develop connections with the right people in given circumstances for needed resources these connections may or may not be characterized as friendships and provide not so much close friendships as reciprocal exchange in some places reciprocity is the means whereby one survives
