over the last decade market based incentives have become the regulatory tool of choice when trying to solve difficult environmental problems evidence of their dominance can be seen in recent proposals for addressing global warming through an emissions trading scheme in the Kyoto Protocol and for amending the Clean Air Act to add a new emissions trading system for smog precursors and mercury. The Bush Administration's Clear Skies Program is widely viewed as more efficient than traditional command and control regulation. This collection of essays takes a critical look at this question and evaluates whether the promises of market-based regulation have been fulfilled. Contributors put forth the ideas that few regulatory instruments are actually purely market-based or purely prescriptive and that both approaches can be systematically undermined by insufficiently careful design and by failures of monitoring and enforcement. All in all, the essays recommend future research that no longer pits one kind of approach against the other but instead examines their interaction and compatibility. This book should appeal to academics in environmental economics and law along with policymakers in government agencies and advocates in non-governmental organizations.

Jen Robin is not just an organizer; she is a teacher and a healer. As she helps sort our stuff, she is also sorting our values, emotions, relationships, and dreams. She is a magician, and this book will work magic on your home and life. Glennon Doyle, #1 New York Times bestselling author of Untamed, in this essential guide, The Creative Force, behind the popular organization Company Life in Jeneral, reveals her emotionally engaged approach to decluttering: a unique process that empowers people to re-envision their spaces to suit their evolving needs. Life is about connection, not collection. Jen Robin's Company Life in Jeneral focuses on the soul work of home organization: the psychological and emotional foundation necessary for creating a streamlined and sustainable lifestyle. For Jen, change comes from within: a process that to succeed must begin with the heart. Americans are spending more time at home than ever before, and many have come to realize that their living spaces aren't serving them. We have too many things, resulting in physical and mental clutter, and the organizational strategies we try only go so far, leaving us feeling disconnected and disheartened. Life in Jeneral helps you build healthier mental habits that allow us to break free from the clutter while providing traditional strategies to get and stay organized. Beautifully designed and featuring examples from Jen's personal experiences and those of her clients, Life in Jeneral teaches us how to flip common mental blocks that prevent us from organizational success. Identify and tackle clutter magnets: the spaces where things seem to gather. Discover common emotional baggage keyed to specific types of clutter. Organize and evolve specific spaces in the home, room by room. Life in Jeneral offers a holistic approach to organization: once we understand what we want from our spaces, how they can nurture and support our emotional well-being, we can create a home that feels both practical and joyful
