although spain is an important member of the eu relatively little is known about its economy and its interrelationship with political forces this book the first of its kind offers a long term view and analyzes this ever changing relationship throughout the 20th century with its various upheavals such as the crisis of the democratic republic and the civil war in the 1930s the long general franco dictatorship from the 1940s until the 1970s and the subsequent transition to democracy from the detailed studies of individual cases specific companies as well as entrepreneurial organizations a very diverse picture emerges contradicting widespread simplistic interpretations of politico economic linkages which demonstrates both the pluralism of the economic interests as well as the complexity of their relationship to the political class landscape and identity in the modern basque country 1800 to 1936 studies the relationship between landscape and modern identities in the basque country using an interdisciplinary approach that combines cultural history and geography it analyses the process of historical construction of the basque landscape highlighting its multiple political social and cultural meanings the book is divided into two parts the first examines the discourses images and representations of the basque landscape the second examines landscape practices through tourism hiking and mountaineering focusing on the basque case but establishing numerous connections with comparable phenomena in western europe the book demonstrates that the landscape became a structuring element insofar as it helped shape individual identities while participating in the creation of social links this book examines the processes of identity construction from below by means of new interpretative tools such as the experience of landscape this work originally published in french brings to an english speaking audience a crucial issue in the modern history of the basque country namely the cultural construction of a collective identity within the framework of a nation state such as spain confronted with multiple territorial identities approaching this question from the perspective of landscape provides new keys to understanding the processes of nation building that occurred in europe in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries caving clubs working in matienzo have made several archaeological finds but very little systematic archaeological work was carried out until contacts were established in 1994 between the british caving expedition to matienzo and archaeologists trained at the university of cantabria the present project covers the late upper palaeolithic and mesolithic the chalcolithic and bronze age and iron age one of its advantages is the opportunity to study an area well known speleologically yet practically untouched archaeologically the other is the nature of the valley itself isolated with its own scenic and ecological character the project is limited exclusively to the matienzo depression in order to examine the resources available and the uses made of them within a determined area in addition to digs materials were collected from the floor surface of other caves both caves and open air sites were prospected and sources of local flint were located the confrontation between the franco regime and basque nationalists produced a series of political assassinations trials and reprisals this historical study presents a vivid account of a century of ferment to establish an independent basque country it recounts the way that nationalism became a political force within basque culture and how that movement subsequently splintered into numerous groups with diverse ideologies tactics and goals art is a major political weapon of our times today peoples around the world use art to boost their own identity and to attack the ways others represent them at a time of increasing intercultural exchange art has become a primary means through which groups reinforce their challenged sense of culture this pioneering book breaks with the tradition of the anthropology of art as the depoliticized study of aesthetics in exotic settings transcending artificial distinctions between the west and the rest it examines the increasingly significant relations among art identity and politics in the modern world among the themes investigated by the contributors how african painters undermine racist stereotypes yet remain dominated by the western art market the role of anthropology museums in the perpetuation of the western market in tribal art the internal and external political disputes underlying the repatriation of cultural property redresses the balance on the human and cultural aspects of the idea of being basque in the modern world everyday nationalism the human and cultural aspects of identity is a neglected subject in the literature on nationalism in europe jeremy macclancy redresses the balance in this unusual and sharp book on the human and cultural aspects of the idea of being basque in the modern world the style is fresh and colloquial dealing with several of the kinds of issues that usually appear in popular magazines cuisine football art and graffiti but the treatment is serious and illustrative of underlying currents in social life macclancy argues that the ethnographic understanding of nationalisms rather than the orthodox studies of ideology political parties social classes and centre periphery clashes offers a more nuanced comprehension of the lived reality of people in areas where nationalism is a significant force this is very much nationalism from the bottom up jeremy macclancy is professor of social anthropology at oxford brookes university series editors wendy james nick allen this important book offers an overview of spanish economic development in the last hundred years it supplies the reader with a variety of papers which deal both with the central issue of spanish economic history namely the relative backwardness of the economy and with specific topics including demography human capital formation agriculture industry economic policy and finance the editors have written a new introduction to accompany the volume
