an autobiographical portrait of a gay arab man living between cultures seeking an identity through love and writing i had to rediscover who i was and that s why i left the apartment and there i was right in the heart of the arab world a world that never tired of making the same mistakes over and over i had no more leniency when it came to the arab world none for the arabs and none for myself i suddenly saw things with merciless lucidity an arab melancholia sal® near rabat the mid 1980s a lower class teenager is running until he s out of breath he s running after his dream his dream to become a movie director he s running after the egyptian movie star souad hosni who s out there somewhere miles away from this neighborhood which is a place the teenager both loves and hates the home at which he is not at home an environment that will only allow him his identity through the cultural lens of shame and silence running is the only way he can stand up to the violence that is his morocco irresistibly charming angry and wry this autobiographical novel traces the emergence of abdellah ta a s identity as an openly gay arab man living between cultures the book spans twenty years moving from sal® to paris to cairo part incantation part polemic and part love letter this extraordinary novel creates a new world where the self is effaced by desire and love and writing is always an act of discovery opening up the field of diasporic anglo arab literature to critical debate this companion spans from the first arab novel in 1911 to the resurgence of the anglo arabic novel in the last 20 years there are chapters on authors such as ameen rihani ahdaf in this first edited collection in english on abdellah ta a denis m provencher and siham bouamer frame the distinctiveness of the moroccan author s migration by considering current scholarship in french and francophone studies post colonial studies affect theory queer theory and language and sexuality in contrast to critics that consider ta a to immigrate and integrate successfully to france as a writer and intellectual provencher and bouamer argue that the author s writing is replete with elements of constant migration comings and goings cruel optimism flexible accumulation of language over borders transnational filiations and new forms of belonging and memory making across time and space at the same time his constantly evolving identity emerges in many non places defined as liminal and border narrative spaces where unexpected and transgressive new forms of belonging emerge without completely shedding shame mourning or melancholy contested borders broadens understandings of dissident sexualities in africa through examining new representations of same sex desire emerging in recent francophone autofictional writing from the maghreb where long established traditions pertaining to gender and sexuality are brought into contact with new forms of gender and sexual dissidence resulting from the inflection of globally circulating discourses and embodiments of queerness in north africa and from the experience of emigration and settlement by the writers concerned in france the book analyses specifically how franco maghrebi writers rachid o abdellah ta a eyet ch@kib djaziri and nina bouraoui foreground translation and narrative reflexivity around incommensurable spaces of queerness in order to index their crossings and negotiations of multiple languages histories and cultures by writing in french spurlin demonstrates that the writers are not merely mimicking the language of their former coloniser but inflecting a european language with discursive turns of phrase indigenous to north africa thus creating new possibilities of meaning and expression to name their lived experiences of gender and sexual alterity a form of queer translational praxis that destabilises received gender sexual categories both within the maghreb and in europe
