throughout the bible divine interaction with humanity is portrayed in almost embarrassingly human terms he sees hears thinks feels runs rides chariots laughs wields weapons gives birth and even repents many of these expressions taken at face value seem to run afoul of much classical theology including divine simplicity transcendence omniscience omnipotence omnipresence and especially immutability traditionally these texts have been seen as accommodations to human intellectual and moral limitations that is they were deemed as giving god a more approachable feel but not as representing any real part of his character being or interaction with humanity for example references to god seeing or hearing are not deemed to represent real acts as god already knows everything however this view is largely based on an aristotelian conception of metaphors as rhetorical devices not vehicles that carry any truth content since the 1970s the understanding of how metaphors convey meaning has taken great strides these advances can help unlock how divine action often inadvertently flattened under theological presuppositions functions within a text this book aims to explore the biblical metaphor of divine sight and how current understandings of metaphorical function can enrich our reading of the text and its theology

we need to recover a truth that has been all but lost in modern day christianity it has been buried for too long and it is too valuable to be forgotten this life changing truth is that the heart is the key to everything in the christian life the heart is the wellspring of all our actions emotions motives and character everything we are everything we say and everything we do flows directly from the heart in the heart the key to everything in the christian life believers will discover how the heart is central to spiritual growth and how it will help us better reflect the image of christ in a fallen world the heart is the key to our service and obedience to the father the heart is the key to the purity and depth of our worship praise and love of god it is time the christian church once again teaches a proper understanding of the heart so that we can fully embrace and manifest the life of christ within us
